The replication process didn't go successfully.

Besides the measurements, there is a problem with the pattern too: on top of the fake line, the embroidery is done in a black thread when it is supposed to be in cream just as shown in the left picture.

Not only the outer but the interior print is different too: while the authentic print designed by Christian Dior has cold undertones the fake one is decidedly more in the warmer colors.

Besides the font the difference appears in the spacings between the letters that are equal on the original print; the same can not be said about the replica.
