No other state is more synonymous with gambling than Nevada.

Usually, they just go home with a story, but occasionally, someone will find a way to turn the sand into gold.

Surprisingly, when it comes to other varieties of online gambling, Nevada is not as developed as some other states.

The state authorized online poker, but left online casinos out of the legislative on.

The lottery is also not allowed in the Silver State.

Furthermore, the restrictive in-person registration requirement for starting an online sports betting account keeps that industry relatively niche to locals.

However, with so many other states finding success with online gambling, and new generations of players increasingly living their lives online, things could change in Nevada.

After all, Las Vegas is the gambling capital of the world and always on top of the latest developments.
