With that comes an abundance of questions from sports fans who want to make the jump from passively watching the game to becoming active participants through sports betting.

This is why it's important to keep track of "line movement" or the amount the line has changed from when it opened to when you are betting.

If that favorite wins, bettors who put down $200 on the favorite to win would win $100 on top of getting their original wager back, so they would win a total of $300.

It's as simple as that! Although, payouts are a bit more complicated, as we discussed above.

This is often because the point spread is set to a number that is high enough that most people believe they will not be able to cover it.

However, these bets are all-or-nothing, which means every separate bet you have now combined together has to win in order for you to win.

Live betting odds often change as the event is happening, so live betting can sometimes be a good way to take advantage of a slow start by a favorite or a fast start by an underdog that has changed the odds to be something you feel more profitable if the favorite now comes back to win, as you previously expected to happen.

Where Can I Start Sports Betting?

Below, we curated a list of legitimately licensed and authorized offshore sportsbooks that cater to US players age eighteen and over.

Nearly all of them! There is only one state that prohibits online betting, regardless of the source.

While some states have chosen not to enact the submitted legislation, we expect many of them, and others, to submit new or revised sports betting legislation when lawmakers gather next.

Normally, whether online or in-person, sportsbooks must verify the age of the bettor usually by requiring some form of screening and a valid form of identification to be presented.

Underage gambling in the US comes with many risks and should be avoided at all costs.
