The origins of the card game are debatable, but most believe it was created in the 1400s by a man named Felix Falguiere or Felix Falguiere.

This original version of baccarat was not played the same way it is today.

From Italy, baccarat travelled to France, where it was known as Chemin de Fer, or "Chemmy".

Baccarat also caught on in England, where Ian Fleming learned how to play the game before creating the world's most famous baccarat player: James Bond.

As more time passed, baccarat cropped up in South America and in the Caribbean, where under the name of Punto Banco, it adapted to the local culture.

In the late 1950s, Tommy Renzoni shipped the game over to the Sands casino in Las Vegas, and the rest, as we say, is history.

Baccarat may have not caught on with the public the same way games like real money roulette and blackjack have, but it still enjoys an air of exclusivity and prestige with many casino goers.

Technology has made it easier for Singaporeans to gamble and be cheated online.

The new Gambling Regulatory Authority will be set up next year.

Closer to home, enforcement officers and engineers are also working on solutions to combat illegal online casinos.

One of them is HTX engineer Ms Tan Wei Lin.

Wei Lin, who received her 1st Class Honours in Electrical and Electronics Engineering from the Nanyang Technology University, is part of the team at the Trials and Experimentations Programme Management Centre (PMC) which worked on the online casino hunter.

The online casino hunter is an artificial intelligence (AI) bot that combines text and image analytics with search engines and web-crawling technologies, to search the world wide web for online casino websites that are targeting at Singapore internet users.

Superior to standard search engines like Google which may turn up irrelevant or insufficient results the casino hunter aims to find as many online Singapore casino websites as possible.

While Las Vegas baseball fans are probably looking beyond their minor league teams and towards the major cities nearby that do have their own baseball teams, it is clear that the best baseball bets out of Las Vegas will cover a number of different teams.

What affect will home-field advantage have? What kind of dynasties and rivalries will evolve? What is an ice hockey team doing in the desert?

There, we cover the different types of bets and all the major races in detail!

These odds will be rather high as it's pretty tough to accurately predict the Super Bowl winner in August when the event takes place in February. Vegas Bett
