TikTok uses its Creator Fund to encourage popular TikTokers to keep creating engaging content. As a creator, once you have at least 10,000 followers and at least 100,000 video views over the last 30 days, you have the potential to start earning money.

It's possible to make money on TikTok by partnering with a brand you believe in. For instance, if you're a makeup artist who posts makeup tips and tutorials on how to achieve the perfect winged liner, you might want to try and partner with your favorite makeup brand. You can reach out directly to these brands and pitch a partnership.

With TikTok's Ads Manager, you can reach new audiences by getting your brand in front of the right viewers. TikTok reports that 1 in 3 users bought a product because they saw it on TikTok. Ads Manager can help you target and find your ideal audience. It offers a suite of creative tools to help you create and edit your videos with tons of ready-to-use video templates. You can also measure the performance of your ads.
