Also known as betting sites, or more colloquially as 'bookies', these operators specialise in online betting - which can be on popular sports such as football, tennis or basketball, or on any other sports discipline that is authorised under the Gambling Commission (the UK body that regulates sports betting). By betting on these different odds, a bettor can earn on successful wagers. You will find this ranking above.

According to our experts, there are several factors to take into account. Indeed although the licenses issued by the Gambling commission give an indication of security to punters, it is also recommended to register with a bookmaker that has a good reputation to ensure a 100% secure betting experience, with no problems on the horizon.
