What we think Fake tanning products have come a long way in the last few years. Although there are still a few poor products on the market, the vast majority these days will give you a perfectly acceptable, functional tan. Fake Bake Flawless, however, seems to be that little bit different, that little bit more refined and it shows in the literally flawless tan it really does give you.

If you have experimented with fake tan before but been put off by the orange glow that some fake tans can give you, then you really should give this a go, as there is no hint of orange whatsoever. The mitt that comes with it is a fantastic way of applying it and we've not come across a better one and once applied, there is no sticky residue left, the fake tan drying in seconds leaving the skin feeling soft and silky.

Are there any downsides? We've been really impressed with the Fake Bake Flawless fake tan and we've not really come across any downsides in its use. Of course, if you are after that orange glow, then this really isn't the product for you, but if you are looking for a high quality, natural-looking tan then you cannot go wrong with Fake Bake Flawless.

The only possible negative that was mentioned during our tests was that it maybe doesn't last as long as some other fake tans. However, its performance was much better so we all agreed that this was a fair trade-off.

Shake the bottle gently before use
