Moreover, we listed the best VPNs for online gambling so you can easily make your choice: ExpressVPN, NordVPN, IPVanish, Private Internet Access, Surfshark, CyberGhost, Mullvad VPN, Hotspot Shield, TorGuard, TrustZone.

The company behind it is based in Panama, and it's a no-logs VPN service, meaning none of your activity is documented.

Of course, this makes it an ideal option for circumventing geographical limitations or placing bets in places where gambling is prohibited.

It also has powerful OpenVPN encryption and a strict no-logs policy to keep your gambling activities undocumented.

The Drawbacks of using a VPN for Online Gambling

They are in business to make money.

This is especially true if the casino site or a specific game is prohibited in your country's jurisdiction.

Are you baffled when announcers at the end of a game make a sly joke about the over/under? Here's what you need to know to get started.

Point spread (or "side"): The most familiar bet in sports is betting on one team with the point spread.

Over/under (or "total"): This is probably the second-most familiar bet, and it's a common one for all team sports, or even for how many rounds a boxing or MMA fight will go.

Moneyline, and what does +190 mean?: This is the most common bet for baseball, hockey and fighting.

Or you can take the Cowboys to win straight up at -170, betting $170 to win $100.

5 runs instead at perhaps -110 odds.

But then if the Yankees win 4-3, you lose your bet; they'd have to win by two runs or more.
