So, the project isn't over budget, he said, but completion of the sports betting venue is now anticipated to carry into spring.

It would be located off Ann Uccello Street.

The CRDA never envisioned the sports bar and betting lounge to be a big moneymaker, but rather serve as a complement to existing services and a draw that brings more people downtown.

This also includes upgrades to loading ramps, the western concourse, additional restrooms, commercial kitchen upgrades and improvements to other systems.

The new sports lounge will include a wall of glass overlooking Ann Uccello Street.

Delivery of that glass has been delayed, forcing CRDA to have a temporary plywood enclosure built at a cost of about $200,000.

Once the glass wall system arrives, the coated plywood cover and related supports will be removed and replaced, Freimuth said.
